2010 Lilly Endowment Community Scholars

The Lilly Endowment Community Scholarship Program works with the Huntington County Community Foundation to keep students with high levels of academic excellence in Indiana by awarding them full tuition and required fees for four years to any accredited Indiana public or private college or university.

This year, two students with outstanding scholastic achievements were awarded the four-year, full-tuition scholarships to the Indiana College of their choice, along with a yearly $800 stipend for required books and class equipment.

The 2010 Huntington County Lilly Endowment Community Scholars are:

Molly King
Taylor University

Lauren Stephens
Anderson University

Both recipients attended Huntington North High School, and were very active in school clubs and groups as well as organizations within the community.

Molly King, the daughter of Denise King of Huntington, plans to attend Taylor University and major in Nutrition. Lauren Stephens, the daughter of Robert and Lisa Stephens, Markle, will major in early childhood education at Anderson University.

Because of the generosity of the Huntington County Community Foundation donors who have set-up funds for continuing education, these students can continue to set their academic goals high and meet their educational dreams. We are proud of the community’s support for these scholars and to announce this year’s scholarship winners in our newsletter.

It’s never too late to learn about scholarship opportunities, or to establish a fund to give other community members to the chance to pursue their academic goals. Please contact us at (260) 356-8878.
